Week 2: Culture and Learning Discussion

Culture has definitely played a role in how I've learned. Growing up in a super small town, my family and community taught me values like working hard, respecting others, and staying connected to the people around me. Those lessons shaped the way I approach school and life.

In school, I notice that culture affects how people communicate, what examples they can relate to, and honestly even how comfortable they feel speaking up in class. For me, my background has pushed me to see learning not just as something that happens in a classroom, but also through family, traditions, and everyday experiences.

I think culture is important because it influences the way that we see the world and how we process information. It reminds me that everyone brings their own perspective to learning, and I think that's something that we can all benefit from.
